Environment Management

Environmental Management Systems (EMS) provides a practical framework within which environmental issues can be managed.

You can set up your own EMS as an internal management tool

Alternatively, there are recognised national and international standards that provide accreditation and external recognition of the standards achieved.

EMS Benefits

- Helps achieve real cost savings - direct efficiencies in energy, water, waste, purchasing and transport
- Management of environmental risk and ensuring legal compliance
- A valuable engagement process for staff and stakeholders
- Effectively demonstrate commitment and responsibility to key clients, regulators and the public
- Leading schemes have been structured to be compatible and complementary with other mainstream standards (e.g. ISO 9001 Quality Standard)
- Increasingly valuable as a pre-requisite for doing business - EMS accredited certification helping to demonstrate your business's compliance with supply chain requirements
